

Consecration Sunday is Coming!

November 2, 2008

Wyoming United Methodist' Church has again chosen to use the New Consecration Sunday Stewardship Program.

New Consecration Sunday is based on the biblical principle of the need of the giver to give for his or her own spiritual development.

At all three services on New Consecration Sunday, November 2, we are asking our members and attendees to make their financial commitments to our church ministries in this community and around the world.

Commitment Cards will not be mailed to your home. All commitments will be made during the three services on November 2.

On New Consecration Sunday, November 2, our guest speaker, Rev. Sandra Steiner Ball will be preaching, inspiring us and helping us to understand what it means to consecrate our lives and gifts to God. She will conclude by guiding us all in making our commitments as a confidential act of worship. Rev. Steiner Ball is well known within WUMC for her gifted church leadership. Currently she is our Conference resource Director, but for many years she was our friend in ministry as our Dover District Superintendent. We are truly blessed to have Rev. Steiner Ball as our guest this year.

We will celebrate! Following each of the three services on New Consecration Sunday, there will be a catered brunch to celebrate this time of blessing. There is no cost to attend but reservations will be required.

We have chosen New Consecration Sunday as a way to teach the biblical and spiritual principles of generous giving in our stewardship education emphasis this year. Prayerfully seek God's will and guidance in your response to His work in us and for us.
